*“Imported rosé is hitting a confluence of consumer trends: an increase in drinking moderately priced ($10 to $20) wines and a thirst for dry, light wines” - The Wine Spectator

*“There’s nothing better on a sultry day than a wonderful bottle of dry rosé.” - Robert Parker

For years, almost alone in Atlanta, Green’s has beaten the drum for dry Rosé. It is the perfect summertime wine. Cool and refreshing, and usually moderately priced, Rosé is meant to be consumed without pretense. It is “just” a fun wine that will match well with almost any food.

Most years our selections are all from France and so it is with this one. Maybe that’s because the French have the most experience in making Rosé. I trekked there this past January to find the very best. Find I did, from the Rhone and Loire Valleys as well as Provence. By the way, 2009 was a magnificent vintage in all three of these areas, as it seemed to be all over France. My picks for the summer are below.

Rhone Valley: Cave de Tavel

If there was a Grand Cru system ranking Rosé in France, Tavel would be a First Growth. Bearing the unofficial title of “King of Rosé”, it was the favorite wine of several Kings of France as well as the Avignon Popes. It was one of the first areas to be granted an official appellation (A.O.C.) in 1936, at the same time as its more famous neighbor, Châteauneuf-du-Pape. It is also a unique appellation in France, as it is allowed to make only Rosé. As this is all that they can do, who else can claim to have more experience making fine Rosé?

Tavel Wine Region in the Rhone Valley

There are three types of soil here that have a strong effect on the character of the wine. West of town is dominated by limestone and slate. Here low-yielding vines grow, giving deep and aromatic wines. Another type is the flat sandy rocky fields, easy to cultivate and good for ripening. The third is dominated by galéts roubles, the smooth round stones also found in Châteauneuf-du-Pape. This soil is located east of the town in the direction of Châteauneuf. You find the most intensely flavored Tavels here.

The producer of the wines below is the Cave de Tavel, a co-op that owns approximately half of the total of the entire appellation of Tavel! Each one of these Tavels expresses the unique character of the soil that the vineyards are located on.

Les Acanthes Tavel Rosé 2009

Green's Cash Price: $11.99

Produced from vineyards in mostly sandy soil, this elegant dry Rosé displays a fine balance of ripe red fruit and acidity. A beautiful wine, it is quite refreshing on the palate as well.-Green's Wine Buyer

Les Lauzeraies Tavel Rosé 2009

Green's Cash Price: $11.99

Sourced from vineyards located on limestone soil, it is made from a blend of Grenache (50%), Cinsault (20%), Syrah (20%), and Mourvèdre (10%). A combination of mineral and red fruit in the bouquet, this dry Rosé displays crispness to blend with its rich red fruit character. There is a nice long refreshing finish here, just lovely.-Green's Wine Buyer

Cuvee Royale Tavel Rosé 2009

Green's Cash Price: $12.99

The terroir of the vineyard of these wines is galéts roubles, the same large smooth pebbles found in Chateauneuf-du-Pape. These stones reflect the heat toward the fruit during the day, and retain, and slowly release, heat throughout the night. The fruit gets unusually ripe here.

Made from Grenache (50%), Clairette (11%), Cinsault (20%),

Syrah and Carignan (9%), and Picpoul and Bourboulenc (10%), this Tavel is the richest and most powerful of the three. Ripe cherry in the bouquet, the wine possesses rich fruit concentration and a spicy quality in the taste. This could overpower some red wines! -Green's Wine Buyer

Other Regions

Victor-Costieres de Nimes Rosé 2009

Green's Cash Price: $9.99

Green's has been proud to sell many Rosés from the Costieres de Nimes district over the years, but Victor is a new property for us. This area is located at the very southern end of the Rhone Valley, just west of Provence. The Rosé style here is between these two.

This is a blend of 50% Grenache, 25% Syrah, and 25% Mourvedre, it has a brilliant light to medium pink color and outstanding bouquet of strawberries and raspberries. The dry flavor shows a ripe red fruit quality, but on the elegant side, with crisp acidity for balance. -Green's Wine Buyer

Domaine de Paris Rosé Cotes de Provence 2009

Green's Cash Price: $8.99

OK, you're sitting out by the pool. It's hot. You want something to slake a thirst. You open a bottle of this lovely Rosé with its beautiful light brilliant pink color and crisp raspberry/strawberry flavor. It's cool and refreshing and soooooo.... elegant on the palate.

I'm not saying you'll be instantly transported back to the wine's source, Cote de Provence, but you'll understand why you might want to be there. -Green's Wine Buyer

La Cabriole Cabernet de Saumur Rosé 2009

Green's Cash Price: $9.99

Made from Cabernet Franc, this delicious Rosé from the Loire Valley has a refreshing red fruit flavor. Cabernet Franc is the highest quality red wine producing grape of the area, it makes a dynamite Rosé as well.-Green's Wine Buyer
